David Ring is the Deputy Assistant Director (DAD) of the FBI Cyber Division's Cyber Capabilities Branch. In this role, he has oversight of the division's Cyber Technical Analytics and Operations Section and Cyber Readiness Section. He leads coordination and deployment of Cyber Division's technical tools, capabilities, digital forensics and incident response teams and oversees all cyber-related training, recruiting, hiring, and finances for the division.

He previously served as the Section Chief (SC) of the FBI's Cyber Engagement and Intelligence Section where he led the FBI Cyber Division's private sector engagement and cyber-criminal intelligence missions.

DAD Ring joined the FBI as an Intelligence Analyst in 2004 and was assigned to the Counterterrorism Division after completing training at the FBI Academy in Quantico, VA.

Prior to joining the Cyber Division, SC Ring served in a variety of capacities in support of the Counterterrorism mission, including as an Intelligence Analyst in support of multiple counterterrorism investigations to include the 2010 Times Square attack and the Boston Marathon Bombing. SC Ring served as the FBI Counterterrorism Division's Senior Liaison Officer to the National Counterterrorism Center before being promoted to Assistant Section Chief over the FBI's Domestic Terrorism and Homegrown Violent Extremist intelligence program in 2018.

DAD Ring holds a bachelor's degree from Dowling College in New York and a master's degree in Professional Studies in Homeland Security from Pennsylvania State University.
