

Jeffrey R. Wood, CSDP is the Regional Director of Aviation for the New York Mid-Atlantic Region at McFarland Johnson. Always an amateur aviation enthusiast, he discovered a career working with airports after he got bored making the world safe for golf courses and townhouses. Jeff has a BS in Environmental Studies from the SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry (ESF). Now in his 26th year at McFarland Johnson Jeff was an “early adopter” of integrating NEPA into airport planning. He has led the preparation of many NEPA documents with broad public and agency interest. He enjoys working with stakeholders to find solutions for environmentally constrained airports. Outside of work, Jeff enjoys outdoor activities in the company of his friends and family.
